Matt Baird asked my reaction to a proposal that he had received from the Office of Research and Reports to the effect that they be allowed to recall one of their employees to active duty as a Reserve Officer and use a JOT slot for him for a two-year period. I told him that as a matter of principle I thought that it was wrong to use JOT slots for this purpose and that I saw no reason why the Office of Research and Reports couldn't have their man recalled to active duty and detailed to them without the use of such a slot. He said that he would refer the matter to  of the Military Personnel Division, 25X1A9a Office of Personnel. H
